OIL PRESSURE SENDERS AND SENSORS

The engine oil pressure sender/sensor is designed to measure the integrity of the engine lubrication system. The sender/sensor responds to changes in engine oil pressure, displayed via operation of the oil pressure light or gauge.

WATER TEMPERATURE SENDERS

The water temperature sender measures the integrity of the engine cooling system. The sender responds to changes in engine coolant temperature, displayed via operation of the water temperature light or gauge.

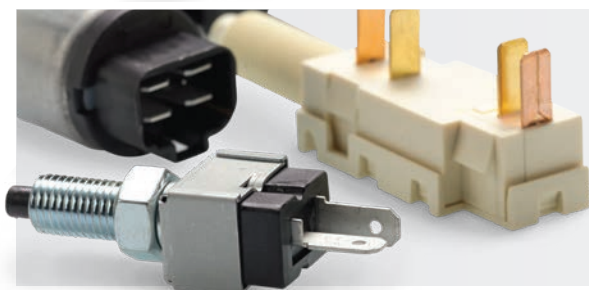

COOLANT TEMPERATURE SENSORS

The coolant temperature sensor is designed to respond to changes in engine coolant temperature. The sensor is crucial in the control of temperature based functions performed by the ECU (eg spark and fuel timing, instrumentation, etc).

THERMO FAN SWITCHES

The thermo fan switch is designed to control operation of the electric thermo fan(s). The thermo fan switch responds to changes in engine coolant temperature, enabling thermo fan operation at a predetermined temperature.

STOP LIGHT SWITCHES

The stop light switch is a mechanical device used to control operation of vehicle stop lights. The switch is designed to complete the circuit with the application of the brake pedal allowing stop light operation.

REVERSE LIGHT SWITCHES

The reverse light switch is a mechanical device used to control operation of the vehicle reverse lights. The switch is designed to complete the circuit when reverse gear is selected allowing reverse light operation (manual transmission only).
